

(DEAD) LANGUAGE MATTERS!:

Practical DEI in Latin Classrooms

William Wasta Werner
Department of Classics

In recent years, both the appropriation of the Roman world by “alt-right” movements and the growing anti-academic populism that targets universities have combined to present an existential threat to the study of the classical languages as we know it in the US. Faced likewise with an ever-shrinking pool of students and resources, the discipline must finally act, not just talk. Accordingly, this talk presents some practical strategies to reinvigorate the way our students encounter Latin in the classroom using methods centered on promoting Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion.

Thurs., February 17

4 to 5PM

RLP 1.302D, Glickman Ctr or *utexas.zoom.us/j/7265820266

LANGUAGE MATTERS!

FREE monthly teacher-oriented presentations hosted by the Texas Language Center. Language Matters presentations apply to all languages! For more information, contact the TLC: 512-471-4123, tlc@austin.utexas.edu.